

Celebrating four years at the Lutheran Center

When rent at the previous location was increasing year after year, Synod Council directed a task force to consider other options for the Office of the Bishop. About that same time, Valley Lutheran Church discerned that Holy Closure would result in gifting their property and building to the Rocky Mountain Synod for whatever ministry purpose was on the horizon.

“When first touring the north building, which was the original unit of Valley Lutheran Church, it was impossible to imagine it as it is now,” said the Rev. Kent Mueller, assistant to the bishop who shepherded the renovation and building project that began in 2013.

“We extend our gratitude to the people of Valley Lutheran Church, who made possible a transformational story of death and resurrection.”

building, the church basement and office annex are the site of the Growing Home emergency and transitional housing program for families. It is the Adam’s County branch of Family Promise. Volunteers from area churches host families for 13 weeks throughout the year. So that the families are safe, egress windows were installed in the basement several years ago, and a fire alarm system is in the process of being installed now.

“The decision to relocate to the Valley site was wise, in that our renovation mortgage payment is much less than our rent would be downtown,” said Pastor Mueller. “Good stewardship means we maximize our resources so that our capacity for ministry is multiplied.”

But owning and operating a property also means there are always additional projects and repairs. A massive hail storm in 2016 resulted in a total reroofing, mostly covered by insurance. “We also have some unfinished landscaping matters on the north side, and on the horizon is the need to completely redo the parking lot,” said Mueller.

The next time you are visiting the Lutheran Center, pause to give thanks for the legacy of the congregation of Valley Lutheran Church.

Seeking Leaders for our Life Together

Vice President Earline Bohling

May 3-5 we will gather at the Westin Hotel for our 2018 Synod Assembly. One item of business on the agenda will be to elect new leaders for our synodical board and committees, as well as voting members for the 2019 Churchwide Assembly.

This year there are some exciting ways for folks to become involved in the life of our Synod. I am excited about many things happening in our life together. We are in the midst of a three year grant from the Lilly Foundation to address financial needs of some of our rostered leaders and of our congregations. How wonderful to be able to discuss money in a faithful way. Following the success of our fall Synod Council meeting in El Paso, TX, the leadership of the synod is exploring new ways to engage with people throughout our vast territory and learning about the ministry that happens in all of our contexts. Missional gatherings, new ideas for our Synod Assembly, and youth gatherings are ways that we can be together as church.

Members of the Global Mission Committee with Young Adults in Global Mission Alums for conversation and planning

As we continue into God's future for the Rocky Mountain Synod, we need new and dedicated leaders to join us in ministry "for the life of the world."

I hope you will consider joining a synodical board or committee as one way to support our life together. Full committee descriptions and position openings can be found on the synod assembly website: www.rmselfca.org/elections. Nomination forms must be received by March 23, or be nominated from the Assembly floor.
